AFRICAN CANNIBALS.

HORRIBLE PRACTICES OF THE MAN EATERS OF THE KONGO.

The Victims Led From Place to Place, So That Prospective Purchasers May Mark Portions They Desire When the Killing Occurs.

Of the numerous instances that might be recorded in illustration of the organized traffic in human beings which exists, reference may be made to the conditions which hold in the district through which the Lulungu river passes. This river, which constitutes a considerable affluent of the Kongo, empties into the latter river, on the south bank, at a point some 800 miles from the Atlantic coast. Within a short distance of the confluence is to be found a series of strongly fortified villages, representing the headquarters of the Ngombi, wherein numbers of slaves are imprisoned pending the periodical visits of traders from the Ubangi country, which is situated on the opposite side of the Kongo.

FROM THE SHADOW.

Under the roses and under the dew,
Dead—but the dreaming, dear heart, of you!

For the day you knelt near the death veiled place
I felt your tears fall over my face.

And the rose that you left where my dreams must be
Thrilled the thought of you down to me!

And I said, from my couch in the white walled dust,
"She is true to her love, she is true to her trust,
"And her tenderest tears will fall for me
Till we meet in God's eternity."

Under the rose and under the dew,
Dead—but I dream no more of you!

The stormy winds o'er my dwelling rave;
Dead are the roses that blessed my grave.

For you never knelt by my couch to say
The loving words that you said that day.

Crumbles my name on the marble's crust,
My dreams are dead, and my heart is dust!

—Atlanta Constitution.

Not Disputing It.

"Anybody who knows enough," said Mr. Spiffins, "can learn something from anybody else, however ignorant the latter may be."

"That is true," assented Mrs. Spiffins cheerfully. "Now, I can occasionally learn something from you."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Unfathomable Mystery.

"What is the greatest mystery of life?"

"It is why a hat that looked stylish last year doesn't look stylish this year."—Chicago Record.

The Pronunciation Explained.

"There is a family in Virginia," says Collier's Weekly, "the name of which is spelled 'Enroughy,' but it is pronounced 'Darby.' This fact, familiar to many Americans, happened to be told by Miss Hayward at a dinner in London at which Mr. Kipling was present, when he broke in: 'You have saved my reputation by telling that. You are the first man, woman or child who could back me up in it.'"

"The explanation of the peculiarity is that the Derbys were an English family who settled in Virginia in the colonial days. One of the sons, the traditional black sheep of the family, was left a share in his father's will on condition that he changed his name. He changed his written name to Enroughy, but continued to call himself Derby.

"On hearing this explanation Mr. Kipling said, 'I think I will change my name to Smith.' 'You can spell it Smith if you like,' was the reply, 'but it will always be pronounced Kipling,' a remark which caused him to look 'as unfeignedly pleased as a boy.'"

The Cavalry Horse.

A veteran cavalry horse partakes of the hopes and fears of battle just the same as his rider. As the column swings into line and waits the horse grows nervous over the waiting. If the wait is spun out, he will tremble and sweat and grow apprehensive. If he has been six months in service, he knows every bugle call. As the call comes to advance the rider can feel him working at the bit with his tongue to get it between his teeth. As he moves out he will either seek to get on faster than he should or bolt. He cannot bolt, however. The lines will carry him forward, and after a minute he will grip, lay back his ears, and one can feel his sudden resolve to brave the worst and have done with it as soon as possible. A man seldom cries out when hit in the turmoil of battle. It is the same with a horse.—Buffalo Horse World.

Not a Bit of a Popular Hero.

"Nobody seems to know much about that man in uniform who slipped out of the carriage while the crowd was cheering the general and went back to the hotel."

"Bless you, no. He isn't one of the heroes. While the brave fellows were fighting at the front, he was nursing yellow fever patients in the hospital."—Chicago Tribune.

Three Bites by a Shark.

J. Morris and Loren Hill relate a peculiar experience with a tarpon and an immense shark near Punta Gorda. While they were playing a large tarpon a shark came up and bit a half moon weighing about ten pounds out of the tarpon's belly. This killed the tarpon, but before it could be gaffed and pulled in the shark took out another half moon a size larger. As they were hauling the tarpon aboard the shark bit off the tail, equaling one-third the length and about one-fourth the weight of the fish. The part that was left over weighed 164 pounds. They beat the shark over the head with the oars. The fish would have been a record breaker and would have weighed about 220 pounds. The scales were preserved and measured 8 1/2 by 4 1/4 inches.

DIVISION OR CONSOLIDATION?

It is reported that the Silver Party State Central Committee will hold a meeting some time in January, and that the question of uniting the bimetallic forces will be discussed. The JOURNAL knows from personal assurance that a large portion of the committee recognizes the proposition of the Democratic State Central Committee as liberal and fair and all that could be asked by any unselfish and sincere silver man in the State. They believe that a joint call for a single convention is the only practical method by which a full and harmonious consolidation of the forces can be effected. The Silver party leaders, with the numerical strength they claim, surely need not fear the result of a convention composed of delegates elected at primaries under a general call, while scarcely a Democrat in the State cares the snap of his finger whether a majority of the convention is composed of former Democrats, Silver party men or Populists, so long as they favor the election of Bryan and will support the principles, which are now clearly outlined, upon which he will be nominated.

There may be a small Republican contingent, similar to the goldbug Democratic squad of 1896, who will favor separate conventions. It is certain that the chances are ten to one against any satisfactory consolidation arrangement being accomplished by separate conventions, but we are confident that patriotism, sincerity and the good of the common cause will dominate in the committee, and that it will accept the olive branch tendered in good faith and cheerfully join in the righteous work of insuring the electoral vote of the State to Mr. Bryan by a two thousand majority, instead of adopting a course which will encourage and invite such division as will perhaps, if not probably, result in a plurality Republican representative from Nevada in the electoral college next year.

SENATOR JOHN P. JONES has given notice that hereafter he will serve on committees as a Republican. — Salt Lake Tribune.

Comment on the above is superfluous. Will the Republicans of Nevada welcome back to their ranks this traitor, whose politics are as changeable as the colors of the chameleon? — Silver State.

There was no necessity for his "giving notice." His votes in the Senate at the last two sessions were sufficient evidence that he was a Republican in everything except in name, and that his sympathies and feelings were all in favor of the Hannaistic policy of imperialism, militarism, trusts and all other incidents to political devilry cherished by the g. o. p.

ELSEWHERE in this issue appears the remarks of Hon. Francis G. Newlands at a dinner given by him to the allied opposition forces of the House of Representatives. Although not intended as a matter of political significance, the ever omnipresent reporter managed to glean a portion of the remarks of the speakers, which were published with many inaccuracies in the Washington Post, and which caused Mr. Newlands to send that paper a correct copy of his speech. It is broad, comprehensive and well worth perusal of our readers.

CARL SCHURZ has been writing letters again, and the imperialists are squirming like a wad of anglo-worms. The great German leader tears the imperialistic argument all to pieces and his words will be influential throughout the length and breadth of the land.

ENGLAND may be mistress of the seas, but she has a tough job on hand to maintain her supremacy on land against such opposition as the Boers are manifesting in the Transvaal.

The New England Dinner.

AN EARLY MORNING RIDE FROM CARSON TO RENO

Arthur Morrison and Sisters Drive Through the Storm to Catch a Train.

Shortly after the V. & T. train had left Carson Thursday evening Arthur Morrison, deputy Secretary of State, received a telegram calling him to the bedside of his father, who was critically ill in California. To make connection with the train at Reno would not be possible for twenty-four hours unless he drove over in a rig.

The snow had been falling all day and showed no signs of ceasing. It meant a great risk to venture out in such a blizzard, for all signs of the road were covered with from six to twelve inches of snow. To leave the beaten path meant that he would perhaps be dashed down some deep ravine to certain death, or would become lost and wander around in the wilderness.

At the last moment it was found that on account of State business it would be an utter impossibility for Mr. Morrison to leave the State. His sisters, who intended remaining until the train next morning, now determined to accompany their brother to Reno. He was persuaded to take them over, and after wrapping as warm as possible the brave trio started for this place in a two horse rig.

They arrived here safe yesterday morning at three o'clock, "most frozen, but uncomplaining. The hardship they had endured on the ride was nothing when compared with the love they had for the father who was dying in California.

The young ladies departed on the flyer yesterday morning to be present at the bedside of their father. Mr. Morrison returned to Carson.

He will remain until the first of February when he will return to Prince of Wales Islands, Alaska, where he has a good position with a salmon packing establishment.

The plant was destroyed by fire a short time ago, and Frank took advantage of the delay in rebuilding to make his present visit. He has been employed in Alaska for the past two years.

THE ICE HARVEST

UP THE RIVER

An Industry Which Benefits Reno in a Substantial Manner.

Sluicing on the ice ponds will commence in a few days. It will be about two weeks before the ice will be in proper shape for harvesting.

Few people realize what an enormous amount of labor is required to gather the ice crop on these ponds every year. The season lasts five weeks, and it is estimated that about six hundred men are given employment, being paid $3 a day. This alone represents an outlay of over $60,000. The cost of hauling and other expenses amount to about $40,000. One hundred thousand dollars is spent every year in this manner.

A large portion of this amount is spent among the business men of Reno. This is an item that is hardly ever considered.

Reno is entering upon an era of prosperity that will mark a new growth in the entire State. Not a political prosperity either, but one of real merit.

IS IT RIGHT

For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N. C.

It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventive of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by Wm. Pinniger.

The Show Last Night.

The show last evening was all—and a little more—than it was advertised. A fair sized audience, composed mostly of giddy old men, was present, and all—most all—said it was "good, by gum."

Nevada Club.

The members of the Nevada Club were entertained last evening by Mrs. R. D. Jackson. All present report a very enjoyable time.

A Recently Valed.

Von Humboldt told me that Humboldt in his later days was completely under the influence of a rascally valet named Seifert, and, to the disgust of his friends, bequeathed to him all his effects, of little value, it is true, for the old man left no property of any account. Even his private letters and papers went to the wretch.

The king and the queen, said Von Dunsen, were for years in the habit of sending Humboldt a present on his birthday. At length it became difficult to know what would be acceptable to the old man, whose wants were so few and tastes so simple. It was their habit to send an aid-de-camp to him a few weeks before his birthday to ascertain, if he could, the sort of gift likely to be most acceptable to him, and whatever that might be, of course, it was sent.

Shortly previous to one of these anniversaries, and in reply to a similar inquiry, the royal couple got word that the philosopher would be pleased to receive a double bed. They wondered what in the world could have put it into Humboldt's head to ask for a double bed, having probably never slept in one in all his life and having been habituated from childhood to the least luxurious sleeping arrangements imaginable.

The old man died, however, before the expected birthday anniversary arrived. It then transpired that the provident valet had concluded it would be a nice thing for him and his wife to have a spick and span new bed with the royal arms upon it, and had taken advantage of the king's regard for Humboldt to try getting one at their majesties' expense.—John Bigelow in Century.

A Very Fine Mule.

My neighbor, Morris, has a very fine mule, and about six months ago this mule tried to pick his teeth with his hind foot and got the shoe fastened in his mouth on a broken tooth. Mr. Morris worked an hour to unloose it, and then called in the neighbors, and they worked with ropes and levers, but couldn't. All of a sudden, while Morris was standing by, thinking what to do next, the tooth broke with a report like a pistol, and the mule's foot flew back against Morris' shin bone and broke it all to pieces.—Raleigh News and Observer.

NEWLANDS' GUESTS

The Opposition Forces Entertained at a Dinner.

Discussion Over Opposition Policy--Richardson, De Armond, Bailey and Others Make Speeches.

The Washington Post contains a column article descriptive of a dinner given by Mr. Newlands to the leading Congressmen of the Democratic, Silver Republican and Populist parties, at which a prolonged discussion took place regarding the lines of action that should be pursued in the present Congress with a view of furnishing a record for the next campaign. The Post says:

"It was a very notable banquet of Democratic and opposition members, as the following list will show: Representatives Richardson and Carmack, of Tennessee; Clark, Cushman and De Armond, of Missouri; Shafroth and Bell, of Colorado; Levy, Chandler, McClellan, Sulzer and Cummings, of New York; Wheeler and Berry, of Kentucky; De Vries, of California; Allen and Williams, of Mississippi; Wilson, of Idaho; Howard Livingston and Fleming, of Georgia; Bailey of Texas; Leutz, of Ohio; Underwood, of Alabama; Okey, of Virginia; Meyer, of Louisiana; Dinwiddie, of Arkansas; and Sibley of Pennsylvania. Ex-Representative Hartman, of Montana, and ex-Representative Towne of Minnesota, also graced the board.

"At Mr. Newlands' right was the minority leader, Mr. Richardson, and at his left the wit of Tupelo, Mr. Allen. Directly facing Mr. Newlands from the opposite end of the table was the ex-leader, Mr. Bailey, of Texas."

After the menu had been completed, Mr. Newlands arose and outlined his views upon the leading issues of money, trusts and expansion, and stated that the purpose of the meeting was to draw out the varying views from the different sections of the country, with a view to harmonizing upon essential issues.

De Armond of Missouri, Sibley of Pennsylvania, Towne of Minnesota, and Bell of Colorado also presented their views and the banquet closed about 1 o'clock after closing speeches were made by Bailey and Richardson.

Though the dinner was private and confidential it seems that a reporter of the Washington Post succeeded in obtaining a partial hearing of the speeches, and Newlands is quoted at considerable length and in a way which inaccurately represents his views. On the following day Mr. Newlands replied in a letter which we also publish in these columns.

Editor Post: The dinner to the "opposition" to which you refer in this morning's Post, was not intended to have any public significance, and I was quite surprised to find it the subject of notice in your paper. As some space is given to an inaccurate statement of my remarks, which may lead to misapprehension, I beg leave to give a correct statement of my views upon the questions referred to.

First. I hold it essential that the forces which are to be opposed to the Republican party in the next campaign, represented now by the Democratic and Silver Republican parties, should be amalgamated by thorough organization and by unification of action on essential issues, and that they should present to the country a policy of constructive statesmanship and not a policy of mere negation.

COMMITTEE TO SHAPE OPPOSITION.

Second. I believe that a step in this direction would be the organization of a Congressional committee, equally representing the different sections of the country, the Eastern, the Middle States, the Pacific and mountain States as well as the Southern States; that it will not do to submit the shaping of our legislative policy and the record of our next campaign unreservedly to Southern Democracy, which now preponderates in this Congress, able and patriotic though it be, but that it is essential that the Democracy of other sections of the country, where real competition exists and where potent opposition quickens the energies and stimulates deliberation and action, should be taken into account. Such a committee, in touch with the opposition members from every section of the country, could do much toward shaping the course of the opposition in practical lines, and could formulate propositions for discussion in caucuses in such a way as to insure harmony in Congressional action.

RATIO A SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION.

Third. Starting with the assumption that the next Democratic platform must declare unequivocally for bimetallism in this country, that is, the free and unlimited coinage of both metals, I hold that the ratio is a matter upon which differences of opinion can be justly entertained by bimetallists.

Individually, I believe that the ratio of 16 to 1 can be maintained by the power of this government alone, but I also believe that the determination of the ratio is a mere matter of detail, which may be safely left to a friendly Congress without platform instruction, and I am inclined to think that this course may disarm the fears of many who are with us in principle, but doubt our power under changed conditions to maintain the old ratio; at the same time I am not insensible to the view urged by some that silence as to the ratio may be regarded as an abandonment of the entire contention for silver by many who were with us during the last campaign. All that I contend is that the ratio is a fair subject of discussion. The principle of bimetallism being established, I think the course pursued regarding the ratio should be such as will secure the most favorable support from the voters.

CONTROL OF THE TRUSTS.

Fourth. As to the trusts, my view is that State legislation will fail in the future, as it has in the past, to meet the difficulty. The remedy must be a federal one, and as broad as the entire country. The theories entertained by the Republican party as to the powers of the federal government enable it to present the remedy, but controlled as it is largely by corporate wealth, it has but little disposition to do so.

The Democratic party has the disposition to apply a remedy, but its traditional views with reference to the limited powers of the federal government and the reserved powers of the States may prevent it from adopting a comprehensive federal measure. My view is that the regulation of these great combinations of capital, whose evils thus far are more those of apprehension than realization, can be secured through publicity of their transactions by published reports to some bureau organized by Congress, which shall collect the statistical information that will furnish a guide to legislation, and through subsequent internal revenue taxation, so imposed upon the franchises and privileges of corporations as to compel all corporations to assume some proportion of the burdens of the federal government, and so graduated as to handicap the corporations having monopolistic tendencies in their competition with individuals who are engaged in enterprises of like character. I am opposed to lowering the tariff wall as to trust products. The substitution in our markets of the products of foreign trusts for products of American trusts simply displaces American labor to the advantage of foreign labor. The true remedy is within the tariff wall. I do not believe that we can restore American competition by belaboring American enterprises with a foreign club.

COMMERCIAL EXPANSION.

Fifth. As to expansion—I believe in commercial expansion, and am against territorial expansion, save that harmonious and legitimate growth which embraces contiguous continental territory, and adjacent islands necessary to the protection of our coast. In our scheme of territorial growth, the Philippines have no part, but they may well be included in our scheme of commercial expansion, and coaling and naval stations may well be secured there as a part of that expansion. Our action with reference to these islands must be controlled by existing conditions and not by mere theories. We are in possession of the islands, though that possession is disputed; we have certain obligations to discharge to civilization and humanity; it is our duty to restore order and to establish a stable government founded upon the consent of the governed, and it is also our duty to give to the islands immediate assurance of ultimate independence; but as self-government cannot be created in a day, it would be a perpetual reproach to us, under existing conditions, to immediately withdraw our forces and leave the islands to unrest, civil war and anarchy. We have certain obligations to the civilized world, and certain obligations to the Filipinos themselves, to discharge. After giving the Filipinos assurance of ultimate independence, we must ourselves be the judges as to the period of tutelage. During this period we can establish our commercial relations with these islands; currents of trade once established cannot be deflected, and we will have all the advantages sought to be secured by ownership without placing these islands under perpetual subjection. Our position is one of trust, not of ownership, and the trust should be discharged in such a way as to maintain without violation the traditional principles of our government, and at the same time secure to us the benefits of commercial expansion.

The Democracy will make a great mistake if it deals only with the abstract and theoretical side of this subject. No party can afford to ignore the commercial instinct of the country, and some practical method must be found to reconcile our commercial interests with our theory of government.

FRANCIS G. NEWLANDS.

House of Representatives, Dec. 8, 1899.

He Lost His Watch.

"Did any of you gentlemen find a watch?" An ebony hued young man addressed that question to a crowd gathered around a fare table last evening. No one volunteered to return the lost property, and Mr. William Robertson—that's his name—proceeded to explain that while moving some baggage he had removed his watch and laid it on a chair. Leaving the room for a moment he returned to find the time piece missing. Some light-fingered member of the Caucasian race had "lifted" it.

The ticker is an heirloom in the family of William Robertson and as such is prized very highly by him. If the culprit will be so magnanimous as to return it to him at the Palace hotel Mr. William Robertson will pay a liberal reward and not ask a single question.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50c and $1.
